WSN Clearview™ Content Federation Server

We understand that the information you create or acquire are necessary for the processes that drive your business. This is why we have implemented the most widely used standard for federating content from any application or repository into WSN Clearview ECM™. CMIS (Content Management Interoperability Services) is a standard for improving interoperability between Enterprise Content Management (ECM) vendors. CMIS defines the attributes, roles, relationships and constraints that are used to use information or services between one or more content repositories. CMIS acts as a "container" for content that standardizes how it is transported between different systems using web services (REST/ATOM). Instead of locking away content into siloed repositories, liberate your content with the WSN Clearview™ Content Federation Server.

Values and Benefits

- Repository to Repository (R2R) Integration and Migration
- Application to Repository (A2R) Interoperability
- Bridge Access to Applications with Federated Repositories
- Federate Searching and Indexing of Content Metadata

"One of the most interesting things about the Clearview solution is the extent to which Clearview leverages SharePoint Server and the Microsoft Office system – not just as a platform for delivering core ECM functionality – but also as part of the core user experience.

The integration of SharePoint Server and the Office system is pretty much seamless and delivers the power of both the SharePoint Server and Office system document management features in a very comprehensive, Microsoft-oriented user experience."
